WGGC 2026 – PASS 2 Player Season Reviews

Below are five bullet-point summaries for every player, explaining how their season unfolded under the Best 7 of 10 format.

1. Christopher Shaw (Position 1)

- Finished the season ranked 1 with a Best-7 total of 252.4 Stableford points.
- Played 10 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they produced dependable returns in most appearances.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they relied more on consistency than explosive scores.
- Ultimately, the format exposed a lack of top-end scores, overall delivering a positive season outcome.

2. Paul Newsome (Position 2)

- Finished the season ranked 2 with a Best-7 total of 250.1 Stableford points.
- Played 10 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they maintained a reliable scoring baseline.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they lacked the very highest scoring peaks compared to rivals.
- Ultimately, the format exposed a lack of top-end scores, ending the campaign on a competitive note.

3. Gez Newsome (Position 3)

- Finished the season ranked 3 with a Best-7 total of 249.9 Stableford points.
- Played 10 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they avoided extreme highs and lows.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they relied more on consistency than explosive scores.
- Ultimately, the Best-7 rule filtered out weaker rounds effectively, leaving room for improvement next season.

4. Peter Barry (Position 4)

- Finished the season ranked 4 with a Best-7 total of 246.4 Stableford points.
- Played 10 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they avoided extreme highs and lows.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they posted several standout high Stableford rounds.
- Ultimately, the format rewarded their season-long approach, putting them firmly in the division mix.

5. Craig Whatsize (Position 5)

- Finished the season ranked 5 with a Best-7 total of 246.3 Stableford points.
- Played 10 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they produced dependable returns in most appearances.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they lacked the very highest scoring peaks compared to rivals.
- Ultimately, the Best-7 cut-off limited upward movement, putting them firmly in the division mix.

6. Jack Davis (Position 6)

- Finished the season ranked 6 with a Best-7 total of 246.1 Stableford points.
- Played 9 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they avoided extreme highs and lows.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they posted several standout high Stableford rounds.
- Ultimately, the Best-7 rule filtered out weaker rounds effectively, leaving room for improvement next season.

7. Dave Wiggett (Position 7)

- Finished the season ranked 7 with a Best-7 total of 245.7 Stableford points.
- Played 10 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they avoided extreme highs and lows.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they relied more on consistency than explosive scores.
- Ultimately, the Best-7 rule filtered out weaker rounds effectively, leaving room for improvement next season.

8. Steve Whiston (Position 8)

- Finished the season ranked 8 with a Best-7 total of 244.8 Stableford points.
- Played 9 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they maintained a reliable scoring baseline.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they posted several standout high Stableford rounds.
- Ultimately, the Best-7 rule filtered out weaker rounds effectively, putting them firmly in the division mix.

9. Dave Thompson (Position 9)

- Finished the season ranked 9 with a Best-7 total of 243.8 Stableford points.
- Played 10 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they produced dependable returns in most appearances.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they posted several standout high Stableford rounds.
- Ultimately, the Best-7 rule filtered out weaker rounds effectively, resulting in a respectable final position.

10. Sean Wynne (Position 10)

- Finished the season ranked 10 with a Best-7 total of 243.1 Stableford points.
- Played 9 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they had a steady scoring profile across the season.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they had a limited number of peak scoring days.
- Ultimately, the format exposed a lack of top-end scores, overall delivering a positive season outcome.

11. Kirk Taylor (Position 11)

- Finished the season ranked 11 with a Best-7 total of 242.6 Stableford points.
- Played 10 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they had a steady scoring profile across the season.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they lacked the very highest scoring peaks compared to rivals.
- Ultimately, the format rewarded their season-long approach, resulting in a respectable final position.

12. Anthony Harding (Position 12)

- Finished the season ranked 12 with a Best-7 total of 237.1 Stableford points.
- Played 9 events, shaping how much flexibility they had under the Best-7 rule.
- Throughout the year, they maintained a reliable scoring baseline.
- In terms of scoring ceiling, they relied more on consistency than explosive scores.
- Ultimately, the format exposed a lack of top-end scores, resulting in a respectable final position.